

Affordable Care Act Repeal Legislation Summary

Background

On March 20th, 2017, Republican leadership in the House released amendments to the legislation that would repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act, called the American Health Care Act. This memo outlines the legislation as it currently stands, including changes that were made by the amendments released last night. The most recent changes have a significant impact on Medicaid policies in the legislation. Notably, the bill allows, but does not require, states to establish work-requirements for certain adults without disabilities on Medicaid. The bill also adjusts the inflationary increase applied to the per capita caps for older adults and people with disabilities. Most significantly, the legislation now creates a state option to receive block grants for serving certain populations, including children and adults without disabilities. States do not have the option to establish block grants for older adults or people with disabilities (including children with disabilities).

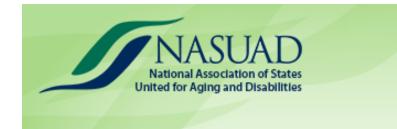

The new amendments raise a number of technical questions about how the changes will be applied. Notably, the bill creates a new eligibility group for childless adults and sunsets the existing statutory group. The new group is broken into two categories: those who were enrolled before December 31, 2019, and would continue to receive the higher ACA FMAP, and those who enroll after this date at the standard Federal matching rate. Yet the bill does not clearly articulate whether states have the option to cover only one of such groups or whether a state would be required to enroll all individuals in both categories if they elect to cover this group.

Similarly, the block grant policy allows states significant flexibility with eligibility and enrollment policies (subject to some federal requirements). One question arising is whether EPSDT would continue to apply to children under the age of 18. The legislation requires states to provide "health care for children under 18" and also clarifies that the services in the block grant would be provided to this group instead of the "Medical assistance" defined by the Social Security Act (which includes the definition of EPSDT under 1905(r) of the Social Security Act). There is no definition of "health care for children under 18," but it appears that this would be different from the current EPSDT mandate in Medicaid.

Our understanding is that the bill will be voted on in the House on Thursday, March 23rd. Although all Democrats, and a number of Republicans have expressed concern about the legislation, the fact that Leadership is bringing it up for a floor vote indicates that they expect the measure to pass.

We are updating our previous memo to reflect changes to the House legislation that have been made since the version we sent on March 6th. NASUAD will continue to provide updates to members as we learn more about this, and other proposals to reform the nation's health care system.

Key Provisions in the American Health Care Act (the House ACA Repeal and Replace bill)

The legislation would effectively terminate the Affordable Care Act at the end of 2019, with a wide range of policies being terminated on December 31, 2019 with significant changes to the Medicaid and insurance marketplace taking effect simultaneously. This includes provisions such as:

- Repealing the ACA advanced premium tax credits (APTCs) which are used to subsidize the purchase of health insurance on the exchanges;
- Repealing ACA taxes, including the increased Medicare tax; the health insurer tax; and the medical device tax, among others (effective at the end of 2016):
 - The tax on high-cost health plans, known as the Cadillac tax, is delayed but not fully repealed. The new bill delays it until 2026 instead of the previous 2025 date;
- Establishing a new tax credit to purchase insurance that is based upon age rather than income:
 - The credit would vary from $2,000 for individuals younger than 30 to $4,000 for individuals over 60.
 - The tax credit is available for each individual in a family up to a maximum of $14,000 per household.
 - The updated legislation includes a gradual phase-out of the tax credits for individuals making more than $75,000 a year (or couples making more than $150,000). For every $1,000 in income above these thresholds, the credit decreases by $100.
- Providing incentives for continuous coverage
- Eliminating the increased Federal match (FMAP) for 1915k/Community First Choice services;
- Removing increased FMAP for ACA expansion groups (note: this has a gradual attrition policy explained below);
- Creating an option for states to establish work requirements on certain adults without disabilities;
- Setting a per-capita cap on Medicaid expenditures, and providing states with the option to receive a block grant for certain populations; and
- Providing $100 billion in grants to states in order to establish programs that support the insurance marketplace and individuals with significant health conditions.

Below, we provide updated detail on some of the policies included in this legislation. Provisions and policies that have changed since our analysis of the legislation on March 6th are noted in red:

The policy also excludes several types of expenditures from the spending cap, including: Disproportionate Share Hospital Payments; Medicare cost-sharing payments; Increased safety-net payments for providers in non-expansion state (that are created by this legislation). 	 For children, expansion enrollees, and other adults without disabilities: the medical care component of the Consumer Price Index for Urban Consumers (CPI-M). For older adults and individuals who are blind or have a disability: the medical care component of the Consumer Price Index for Urban Consumers (CPI-M) plus one percentage point. The baseline of FY2019 is set using FY2016 per-capita spending information. The FY2016 calculation is adjusted using the medical component of the consumper price index (CPI-M) between 2016-2019. Allowable supplemental payments that are not attributable to a specific person or service are calculated separately as a percentage of total expenditures and distributed across all population groups for purposes of calculating the per-capita caps. The amendment on 3/20 also explicitly excluded Vaccinations for Children under section 1928 of the Social Security Act. States must provide CMS with reporting information on the medical assistance expenditures and enrollment information for each of the five eligibility categories used to calculate per-capita caps. States are provided with 100% FMAP for MMIS/eligibility system design, implementation, and installation as well as operations/maintenance in FY2018-FY2019 to support the development of systems to meet the reporting requirements. States are also Flexible Block Grant		provided with a 10% increase to Medicaid administration matching (for a total of 60% match) for expenses directly related to implementing the new data requirements.

Option Option	The legislation on 3/20 creates a new option for states to elect to receive a block grant. States would voluntarily accept a block grant proposal for a 10-year period, which could be extended for additional 10-year periods. States that elect to not extend a block grant would revert to percapita cap policy, with adjustments calculated as if the block grant had never	 The block grant option would not apply to the entire Medicaid program. Block grants would be allowed for one of the two options: Both children and non-pregnant, non-expansion adults (as defined by the per capita cap policy above). 	been implemented.	States do not have an option to include older adults and people with disabilities in the block grants. The legislation states that individuals who are disabled (as defined by the Medicaid state plan) would not be included in this block grant, even if they fall into one of the block grant categories.
		Block grants are calculated based upon the per capita caps established for FY2019 multiplied by the number of enrollees in FY2019. Then, the total amount is multiplied by the average state FMAP for the FY2019 (which is calculated as part of the per-capita cap process). This sets the initial block grant amount at the Federal expenditures calculated for the per-capita caps, based on the number of enrollees in 2019. There is no subsequent adjustment for enrollment.
		Block grant amounts are increased each year by the consumer price index for all urban consumers (CPI-U). This is different from the CPI-M increase in per capita caps.
		States that do not spend their entire block grant can roll-over the funding to the next fiscal year, provided that they do not elect to riovision	Description of the issue	 Drugs, medicines, and prosthetic devices; Other medical supplies and services; and Health care for children under 18. The legislation states that the services in the plan will be provided to this group in lieu of Medical assistance, as defined by the social security act. There is no definition of "health care for children under 18," but it appears that this would be different from the current EPSDT mandate in Medicaid. Lastly, in addition to the new flexibility with benefits and eligibility, the state would also have the ability to not apply core Medicaid policies to groups in the block-grant. These include statewideness requirements, comparability of services, freedom of choice, and reasonable/comparable eligibility standards and procedures.

Permitting States to Apply a Work Requirement	Creates a new policy allowing work requirements for certain individuals who are not an: Older adult; Individual with a disability; Pregnant woman; or Child.	Beginning on October 1, 2017, states may elect to establish work requirements as a condition of receiving medical assistance for certain individuals. States may determine the time period for these work requirements to apply. Uses the TANF definition of work requirements (Section 407(d) of the Social Security Act). This includes both subsidized and unsubsidized employment; on-the-job training; job search activities; and various employment-related education and skills training activities. States may not apply this requirement to:

Hospitals Providing Presumptive Eligibility	Under the ACA, eligible Hospitals were allowed to provide presumptive eligibility determinations to individuals that were likely to be Medicaid eligible. This enabled potentially-eligible persons to enroll in Medicaid at the Hospital in order to defray medical costs and uncompensated care. This provision largely applies to individuals in non-ABD groups, as the disability determination could prevent immediate eligibility determinations; however, some older adults or persons with disabilities may qualify for presumptive eligibility.	Ends the requirement for states to allow eligible Hospitals to provide presumptive eligibility determinations, effective January 1, 2020.
Counting Lump Sum Payments for MAGI eligibility	This would impact individuals who are determined eligible under the Modified Adjusted Gross Income calculations. MAGI groups do not have asset tests. Medicaid eligibility is determined based on income at a certain point in time; thus, individuals who receive a large lump-sum payment in one month can become eligible for Medicaid (or re-establish eligibility) in the following month.	This provision would count lump-sum income from sources such as a lottery, gambling, or an inheritance, in excess of $80,000 over multiple months, thus preventing individuals from re-establishing Medicaid eligibility as quickly. Under the legislation, individuals could have income from a large payment (exceeding $1,260,000) counted for up to 10 years.

Provision Description of the Issue While MAGI generally applies to eligibility categories for individuals under age 65 without disabilities, some people who become eligible via MAGI groups have disabilities and LTSS needs. Removal of Retroactive Eligibility Medicaid policy allows eligibility to be established for three months prior to the date of application, if the individual met all of the Medicaid eligibility requirements during that three-month period. States have the option to increase the exclusion to an amount that is no more than $840,000. These amounts are indexed each year based on CPI-U. This provision is a new policy which creates a new payment exclusion for certain providers of abortion services. The payment exclusion lasts for 1 year from the enactment of the law. It is unlikely to directly impact LTSS providers, but may limit the sources of care that some individuals are able to utilize.	in future years, at the dollar amounts calculated using the CPI-U inflationary factor). The provision would take effect 180 days after the law is enacted, except that states who require a state plan amendment to enact the policy would be given additional grace time until after their next legislative session. Excluded providers are those that meet the following criteria (including all subsidiary organizations): • A 501(c)(3) organization; • Is an "essential community provider" under the ACA that is primarily engaged in family planning services, reproductive health, and related care; • Provides abortions that are not due to rape, incest, or a life-threatening condition to the mother; and • Received more than $350 million from Medicaid programs in FY2014
Repeal of Medicaid DSH Cuts	Hospitals that provide a disproportionate amount of care to low-income, uninsured, and/or Medicaid eligible individuals can qualify for supplemental DSH payments. DSH payments are capped at an annual allotment for each state. The ACA reduced aggregate DSH cuts based on the expectation that Hospitals would serve fewer uninsured individuals. The cuts were delayed several times by subsequent legislation.	throughout all affiliates, subsidiaries, successors, etc. The legislation rescinds the DSH cuts and returns national DSH levels to pre-ACA amounts in two waves. States that did not expand Medicaid under the ACA would have their DSH allotments restored in 2018. States that expanded Medicaid would have the DSH levels restored in 2020.

		2022. Allocates $2 billion a year for those five years ($10b total) for these payments. Eligible states receive 100% FMAP for these payments for the first four years and 95% for the fifth year. Funds for states are determined by the ratio of individuals with income below 138% FPL across the non-expansion states. Payments to individual providers are limited to the costs incurred providing services to uninsured and
Requires More Frequent Eligibility Determinations for Expansion Populations		Medicaid-eligible individuals. Beginning October 1, 2017, states would be required to do eligibility redeterminations at least every 6 months for individuals in the ACA Medicaid expansion. Increases civil monetary penalties for individuals who knowingly enroll in the program when they are not eligible. Provides states with a 5% increase to Federal matching funds attributable to implementing this requirement from October 1, 2017 – December 31, 2019.
State Innovation Fund	This is a new policy that creates a grant program and funds it with $100 billion over a nine year period. The funding is $15 billion in FY2018 & FY2019, and $10 billion in the following seven years. There are a number of things that states can use the funding to achieve, many of which are targeted to individuals who are high-risk and/or projected to have high utilization. The innovation funds focus on stabilizing the private marketplace and do not include reference to long-term services and supports. While older adults and individuals with disabilities are not necessarily a targeted population, they are likely to fall into one or both of those groups.	Allocates $100 billion over the nine-year period beginning in FY2018 for grants to states in order to: • Provide financial assistance to highrisk individuals; • Creating incentives to stabilize insurance prices; • Reducing cost of providing insurance to individuals who are expected to have high utilization; • Increasing insurance company participation in the individual and small group markets; • Promoting access to preventive services, dental care, and/or vision services;

		 Providing direct payments to health care providers for the provision of certain services. The services would be defined by HHS; and Providing assistance to reduce out-of-pocket costs for insured individuals.
		States can elect to develop their own program or have a default federal program established. Both options require state match, but at different levels.
		In 2018 and 2019, there are two components to the formula for allocating funds to states: • 85% of the allocation is based upon incurred claims for costs in the individual market; • 15% is allocated based upon states that saw an increase in uninsured individuals below 100% FPL or that have fewer than three plans offering coverage on the 2017 health care exchange.
		In subsequent years, the HHS secretary is directed to set allocations based upon a factor that takes into account the cost of care, the risk profile of the population, the number of low-income uninsured individuals, and health plan competition.
		Beginning in FY2020, states that establish their own programs have a 7% matching requirement for these funds. This increases by 7% each year, ending at a 50% matching requirement in FY2026. States that use the default program have a 10% match beginning in 2020, increasing by 10% each year until it reaches 50%, where it remains until 2026.
